friend with every body, a little before he had been with Wolzogen who had been taking tea with him. Can that be disarranging, and again if he is worth me, I cannot suspect his conduct.
What is that man?

25th Sun^{dy} Sunday after the sermon. God has dealt with me graciously, I had expected to see the church quite empty, as I stepped before the pulpit to read prayers, it seemed that the ~~place~~ room between the seats would not be filled, but if my eye did not deceive me the difference was small. That is in so far refreshing as it shows that there is an internal attachment in the people. I searched myself again concerning selfishness & I can duly say: I have the firmest conviction possible, if a man who preaches full gospel truth more than myself like Schmiedel & Lies ~~collected~~ ~~several~~ ~~attended~~ all the world & left my church empty I would be quite glad, because it would require fewer exhortations, it is the same concerning the lectures.
I have the most positive certainty about that.

3 July 37 Tuesday How do we do now? Today I finish the crownprince, letter from Berlin granting M's journey which had made me particularly uneasy about my journey, though no decision as yet from the king. Oh woe to me! - The lecture exceedingly thin it is to be attributed, it appears, to the evening hours.

Understood yesterday from Ellis that Schulze has written the review, I am excessively grieved that no other professor comes & wish often for Paus, yet I followed conscience, there was the appearance that an evangelical union would be sent, that they succeeded in preventing it is not my fault, therefore I must all leave to God.

12 July 37 Wednesday Ten o'clock Returned from Leienfeldt, where we dined, myself at the side of Edmund, Werner, Marks.
Agreed with Marx concerning the missions, which is a subject of sincere gratitude towards God. After dinner talk with Wernicke, who said: Mittle from M. is pardoned.
Is this really the first message of what my mind has sought after so earnestly & with so many sighs two years since? I recollect the moments when the first indications of his speedy release from prison were given. Oh God, God! Though my mind is troubled now by several things, by the purchase of the house, by the apprehension of seeing new infidel professors appointed here & so on, yet I shall triumph with joy if this information proves to be true.
I take it to be true indeed. Afterward accompanied Wassens. till midnight, walked back, found the Studer & Schmiedes review about myself.

14 July Oh the nervous disposition of my body. Tremble & there is none who makes me tremble, I am dejected & there is nothing to deject me. The only two things,
