The letter I had written from Leipsic had been so long detained in its passage to Holland, that if credit I had order'd to be sent me hither for money to supply my occasions, came not to my hands till yesterday, by means of which disappointment I have not been able sooner to return you of fifteen Florins w^{ch} you were pleas'd so generously to lend me, and for which I now send you herewith four Ducats: the one Florin of surplusage I pray you to cast as my mite into y^e Orphan's Treasury, and as an earnest of a further tribute which I think myself oblig'd to pay at some fitter opportunity; I am sorry that I could not be more punctual in y^e repayment, and hope your goodness will excuse the default.

I thank you for your recommending me to y^e knowledge of God Oyenhausen, whom I find to be a grave & serious person, and am sorry that I have not language to converse as freely as I would wth a man of his spirit. He tell me that he thinks Mr Hales has some preferment conferr'd upon him by his Matie; I hope to make myself acquainted wth him & Mr Boehm soon after my return to England. I shall always retain a gratefull sense of y^e friendship you were pleas'd to shew me whilst I staid at Halle, and shall long resent y^e edifying conversation I had with you, for which I pray you to accept my ~~divine~~ thanks, and the assurance of my best services both to your self & y^e good work you are engag'd in on all occasions that can come within my power; I pray you also to present my service to the Professor

The reverend Mr Professor Franck

Professor Lang, and that you will both believe that I truly love & honour you in the Lord, & desire to live so as that I may be worthy to be esteemed by you as

Y^r faithful Christian Friend
& hum^{ble} Serv^t
J^{es} Clement
